Project: Education Reference Section in Freil Library: Two English/Education majors sought to re-establish an Education reference section in the library available to Students and faculty. Through extensive collaboration with library administration, Education Department faculty and Education Club Students existing materials were brought to light, new materials needed identified, and methods of use investigated. The project also took on an additional goal of seeking a space where Education Students could meet and work on practice lessons. Project completion was slated for the following semester.
2) Center for Service e-Portfolio Enhancement: A Business Administration major remodeled the e-Portfolio used by the Center for Service. The student examined the uses of e-Portfolios by other colleges and workplaces relevant to the Center and interviewed key personnel on the MCLA campus. Changes made in the Center for Service e-Portfolio expand access and create a variety of links to enhance portfolio sophistication and ease of use. All Center programs were highlighted and updated with new photos, descriptions and statistics.

3) Students Seeking Change of MCLA’s Sexual Assault Policy: A Sociology major worked with a small group of MCLA Students and the national SAFER [Students Active for Ending Rape] organization to change the language of the MCLA Sexual Assault Policy and raise awareness of sexual violence issues on campus. She was involved in hosting a SAFER workshop on campus, and changing policy language to remove gender bias and victim blaming. Her advocacy group also made plans for more policy changes and educational programming for the next semester.

4) MCLA Student Resource Guide: Two Students, one a double PSYC & SOCI major and the other a Political Science major developed an extensive reference guide of MCLA offices and services. The need for the guide was established via an online survey [First Course, Facebook, etc.] and will be made available through Student Affairs to new and existing Students. The guide describes programs and services and how Students can access them.

Off Campus Projects and Partners:

1) Christmas Party for Employees: A Business Administration major organized a Christmas party dinner and dance for 150 employees and spouses at her place of employment. The student organized all facets of the event from budget to venue to entertainment and studied the impact of collective activities on employee morale and productivity.

2) Alternative School Mentoring Program: An English Education major developed a program to support youth in a local alternative high school. The program recruited and supported a group of MCLA student mentors who visited the alternative school weekly to act as tutors and friends.

3) Supporting Arts in the Schools: An Arts Management major, an English major, and a History Education major joined together to collect art supplies and donate them to a local elementary school. They also worked with the Art teacher in the school to develop and engage multiple courses in art activities using some of the materials collected.

4) Child Care Center and College Volunteers: Three Sociology majors, two employed by a local child care center and one who volunteered there, developed a formal volunteer program with the Education Club at MCLA. The goal is to bring college Students into the child care classrooms for to provide specific programs to the children. Education Students will gain helpful experience as teachers in the community and the children will benefit from additional programming and contact with college Students.
5] Improving Town-Gown Relations: An Arts Management major worked with the local Office of Tourism to develop community practices and programs designed to more fully integrate MCLA with its local surroundings. Survey material from college Students and community members was gathered to inform a brochure filled with coupons, attractions, events and local information that would be provided to Students during orientation.

6] Charter School Tutoring Program: An Interdisciplinary Studies and Education major developed a tutoring program for the local charter school. The student recruited and organized MCLA volunteers to tutor in the needed areas of math and English language arts. MCLA volunteers also served as role models and supports for the college aspirations of the Students.

7] Clothing Exchange for Young Parents: A Sociology major established a clothing exchange to serve teen mothers. The student organized several clothing drives and made the clothing available to the young parents. The value of stylish clothing to the self-concept of young women was researched and built into the program model.
